poems by Stephen Crane

Soprano

2 B $\flat$  Trumpets

C Score.

Some rubato is possible in the more lyrical sections, and both general pauses and pauses between phrases for breaths may be a little metrically looser.

One fine I accidentally wrote this piece. Actually it took two days, and another decade before it found its final version, but what's a day, a year, a decade, when in the end we shall all face the jaws of the final beast.

From the Land of the Farther Suns sets six poems by Stephen Crane from his famous collection The Black Riders and Other Lines in a continuous symmetrical form. The soprano and two trumpets are fused throughout into a kind of meat-instrument, dark harmonies separating and converging, jagged rhythmic patterns alternating with more lyrical interludes.

poems from The Black Riders and other Lines by Stephen Crane

IV

Yes, I have a thousand tongues,
And nine and ninety-nine lie.
Though I strive to use the one,
It will make no melody at my will,
But is dead in my mouth.

XXIV

I saw a man pursuing the horizon;
Round and round they sped.
I was disturbed at this;
I accosted the man.
“It is futile,” I said,
“You can never—“
“You lie,” he cried,
And ran on.

XXVI

There was set before me a mighty hill,
And long days I climbed
Through regions of snow.
When I had before me the summit-view,
It seemed that my labour
Had been to see gardens
Lying at impossible distances.

XXIX

Behold, from the land of the farther suns I returned.
And I was in a reptile-swarmed place,
Peopled, otherwise, with grimaces,
Shrouded above in black impenetrableness.
I shrank, loathing,
Sick with it.

And I said to him,
“What is this?”
He made answer slowly,
“Spirit, this is a world;
This was your home.”

XLII

I walked in a desert.
And I cried,
“Ah, God, take me from this place!”
A voice said, “It is no desert.”
I cried, “Well, But—
The sand, the heat, the vacant horizon.”
A voice said, “It is no desert.”

LXVII

God lay dead in heaven;
Angels sang the hymn of the end;
Purple winds went moaning,
Their wings drip-dripping
With blood
That fell upon the earth.
It, groaning thing,
Turned black and sank.
Then from the far caverns
Of dead sins
Came monsters, livid with desire.
They fought,
Wrangled over the world,
A morsel.
But of all sadness this was sad—
A woman’s arms tried to shield
The head of a sleeping man
From the jaws of the final beast.
